- Final reflection assignment posted. Due by end of finals week. It is REQUIRED.

Goals for today

- Address any concerns you might have about ERSP or research or your project specifically
- Get to know more people
- Reflect on your experience in ERSP
- Understand what is coming next in research, in ERSP and beyond

3 polls based on your Week 7 reflection answers

- What do you like best about ERSP?
- What do you like least about ERSP?
- What are you most concerned about?

Speed networking to get to know others better

- You will spend 3 minutes talking to someone you hopefully don't know very well.
- We will have 3-5 rounds, and each round will have a different prompt.
- After each round, the 1s will get up and move to a new partner.

Round 1

- Why did you choose to participate in ERSP? How has it or has it not lived up to your expectations?

Round 2

- What aspects of your identity are most salient to you (e.g. race, gender, place of origin, ability status, sexual orientation, etc.) and how have these shaped your experience in computing?

Round 3

- If you dedicated your life to making the world a better place, what would you pursue?

Round 4

- Someone says to you "There are so few Black and Latinx students in CS; it's a lot easier for them to get jobs." How do you respond?

[from the Teaching Practices game by Lewis and Conrad]

Round 5

- In a group meeting, you notice that one of your group members keeps getting interrupted when she is speaking. What do you do?

Advisor relations, discussion

- Last class we discussed how advisor/student relationships can go off track. Discuss with people who are NOT in your group what your relationship is with your advisor. Do you feel comfortable talking to them? Are their expectations clear? Is there any friction you perceive? How do your different experiences relate?

Open discussion – What's on your mind about research/ERSP/etc?

Short Break

Letters to your past/future self

- Find the activity on our Canvas site and follow the instructions there.

Looking Ahead – Winter and Spring

- In Winter and Spring you will NOT have class. You will spend 6-8 hours per week, including the following meetings:
 - 60 minutes/week with Vaidehi
 - 30 minutes/week (or more) with your advisor
 - (Maybe) advisor group meetings
 - 15 minutes every other week with Mai or Christine
 - At least 2 hours/week when you can all work together

Looking ahead – Research Beyond ERSP
